

New Salem Baptist Church Supporters

New Salem Baptist Church built in 1886 is Sevierville's oldest surviving building and the county's oldest brick church and only historic African-American church. Built as a Union Church for African-American congregations of all religious beliefs, its name was changed in 1897, when it became New Salem Baptist Church. On July 24, 2003, the church was listed in the National Register of Historic Places. An important part of the community's 19th century heritage.

The New Salem Renovation Task Force was created to safeguard and restore the standing legacy of New Salem Baptist Church by raising funds to renovate and preserve history for the people of East Tennessee.

The goal of the task force is to annually raise $25,000 through fund raising events, $5,000 in individual donations, and $10,000 in sponsorships.
